LATEUM TODAY:

(The Linguistic Association of Teachers of English at the University of Moscow) is the first linguistic association of teachers of English in Russia that was set up as a professional organisation to provide a new line of cooperation between teachers of English (and Russian) both inside the country and on a world-wide international scale.

It is now for the second decade that LATEUM has been directly involved in a very wide range of programmes of both academic and educational orientation reaching far beyond its primary concern – theory and practice of ELT. As has been pointed out from the very start, LATEUM members should not necessarily be the Lomonosov Moscow State University teachers only: membership is open to English / Russian philologists at other universities and training colleges world-wide. Thus the aims and objectives of the Association are:

- to update and strengthen instruction and research at all levels of English Language Teaching;
- to establish and maintain contacts with linguistic associations world-wide;
- to collect and spread useful information about new developments in teaching English as a foreign language;
- to provide opportunities for the discussion of professionally relevant issues by holding regular bi-annual conferences and publishing the newsletter of LATEUM.

LATEUM today is an Associate of IATEFL and a member organisation of FIPLV (Federation Internationale des Professeurs de Langues Vivantes). The Association today enjoys unanimous authority and prestige not only among its regional representatives – teachers of English and Russian from various regions of Russia, Belarus, the Ukraine, Kazakhstan and the Baltic countries, to mention just a few – but has become a reliable partner to such internationally recognised organisations as UCLES (The University of Cambridge Examination Syndicate), ESSE (European Society for the Study of English), TESOL (Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages), NATE (National Association of Teachers of English), PALSO (Panhellenic Federation of Language School Owners), SPELTA (St Petersburg English Language Teachers Association).

The regular LATEUM bi-annual International Conferences (7 events were held in the years 1991, 1993, 1995, 1997, 1999, 2001, 2003 and the 8th is scheduled for September 2005) are invariably treated as hallmarks of academic and educational life in Russia and on a number of occasions have attracted attention of such eminent authorities as David Crystal, John Wells, Michael Swan, Michael McCarthy, John Honey, Michael Lewis, Denis Cunningham, Ken Wilson, Antony McEnery, Michael Howey, Bas Aarts and Simon Greenall who visited the LATEUM events as Speakers and whose interest in the Association has always been both consistent and personal. All LATEUM events are inseparable from the life of the Lomonosov Moscow State University, Faculty of Philology at large and are generally sponsored and supported by the British Council Moscow, Embassy of the United States of America Moscow as well as by the numerous Publishing Houses of world renown and distribution companies (Cambridge University Press, DBC, European Book Company, Dinternal, Macmillan, Oxford University Press, Pearson Education, Relod et al.).

LATEUM is open for contacts of current academic and educational orientation, it welcomes membership world-wide and offers cooperation to all similar organisations in the desire to achieve shared professional objectives in all spheres of English / Russian language and cultural studies.
